

Can cannabis seeds replace prescription drugs?

Prescription drugs are not only expensive but many of them can also be outright dangerous. Some of them have various side effects that may be dangerous to your health. In contrast, cannabis medicines are cheaper, safer, and easier to make. They do not have those side effects that the prescription drug normally generates among the patients.

Dronabinol vs. Marijuana

There are many people who think that the drug dronabinol can be used in place of marijuana. This drug consists of elements like marijuana, the leading among grains de cannabis. However there are few big problems involved with dronabinol. It creates some evil effects in the patient and many people think that marijuana works much better in comparison with patients suffering from trauma.

Moreover there are many physicians and drugs stores that either do not prescribe dronabinol or do not sale it. The use of this drug also requires a lot of paper works that are to be carried out with the DEA.

Moreover, dronabinol comes up in shape of tablets that is not suitable for persons suffering from trauma. It is also very hard to take the right amount of dronabinol that cannot be smoked. Dronabinol is also the only of divergent chemicals that are present in Graines Cannabis and it does not contain more calming chemicals that are present in marijuana.

Wrong notions about the effects of grains de cannabis

There is a wrong notion about marijuana and cannabis seeds that stay in the fat cells of a person and keep the in takers high for months together. There is one part in marijuana that puts you high. It is called THC.

These particles do not get you high. It has been highly confused with the chemical that gets you high which is also unfortunately named as THC. Of course the cannabis seeds can also keep you high throughout the day if taken at a higher dose.

Another wrong notion about the cannabis is that marijuana or Graines Cannabis has become much more powerful today than it was in the Sixties. They also claim that marijuana is twenty to thirty times stronger than it was in those days. This is not true.

In fact the potency of cannabis seeds have not changed much even today. Marijuana smokers can at times engage in auto-titration. This means they will go on smoking marijuana or cannabis seeds till they are completely satisfied. However there is nothing that would force the smokers to smoke out an entire joint.

Does cannabis cause damage to brain?

The above question could be answered in one simple word, “no”. Sometimes such wrong notions about grains de cannabis arise out of some reading or discussion that itself are based on faulty concepts. Neither cannabis causes brain damage nor does it make you stupid.

Several studies have been conducted to find out whether there is any damaging impact on the brains due to smoking of marijuana or cannabis. But the results have always come out in the negative. The bland truth about it is that no study has ever established any cellular damage caused by use of cannabis seeds.

About the Author

If there is one website that would give you the complete picture on Graines Cannabis, then this is the one. Log on to the website and have all the information you desire to have on graines de cannabis. You will have all the required information on cannabis seeds and hemp and their comparison with prescription drugs on this website.

Source: <http://www.mmm-ec.org>